Madison College Instructor Attending First-Ever Community College Summit

Madison Area Technical College sociology instructor Suzanne Sublette is one of only six college faculty members in the country who is attending the first-ever White House Summit on Community Colleges today in Washington, D.C.

Chaired by Dr. Jill Biden, the event is bringing together community colleges, business, philanthropy, federal and state policy leaders, as well as students to discuss how community colleges can help meet the job training and education needs of the nation’s evolving workforce.

The event will highlight the critical role that community colleges play in developing America’s workforce and reaching our educational goals.

Here’s the link to the White House’s webpage that has more information about the summit: http://www.whitehouse.gov/communitycollege.

###

Madison Area Technical College serves approximately 40,000 individuals annually, providing “real world smart” education through a comprehensive curriculum of technical, liberal arts and sciences, adult basic education and continuing education, as well as customized training for employers.