Madison College Hosts Construction Trade Fair

Interested in a career in the building trades?

Madison Area Technical College is hosting a Construction Trade Fair from 3 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 28 in the Truax campus cafeteria, 3550 Anderson Street.

Eric Cobb, executive director of the Buildings and Construction Trades Council of South Central Wisconsin, will be among those talking about career and apprenticeship opportunities in the building trades.

Madison College representatives will also be available to answer questions about the first phase of the College’s building plan and the construction bidding process. The $134 million project was overwhelmingly approved by voters last November. Groundbreaking for Madison College’s new Health Education Building is scheduled for this September.

The College will hold similar trade fairs this August in Reedsburg, Portage, Fort Atkinson and Watertown.
